Invisible Countries - Joshua Keating 2018-01-01

A thoughtful analysis of how our world's borders came to be and why we may be emerging from a lengthy period of "cartographical stasis" What is a country? While certain basic criteria--borders, a government, and recognition from other countries--seem obvious, journalist Joshua Keating's book explores exceptions to these rules, including self-proclaimed countries such as Abkhazia, Kurdistan, and Somaliland, a Mohawk reservation straddling the U.S.-Canada border, and an island nation whose very existence is threatened by climate change. Through stories about these would-be countries' efforts at self-determination, as well as their respective challenges, Keating shows that there is no universal legal authority determining what a country is. He argues that although our current world map appears fairly static, economic, cultural, and environmental forces in the places he describes may spark change. Keating ably ties history to incisive and sympathetic observations drawn from his travels and personal interviews with residents, political leaders, and scholars in each of these "invisible countries."

The CAADP 2020 biennial review: Why many countries are off-track - Benin, Samuel 2020-05-07

This note analyzes the trajectory of the benchmark and its implications for the effort required of countries to remain on-track or get on-track toward achieving the goals and targets of the Malabo Declaration by 2025. It also analyzes the change in the overall score obtained by different countries between the 2018 and 2020 BRs by decomposing the contribution of different indicators to the change. This helps to explain why fewer countries were on-track in the 2020 BR compared to the 2018 BR. The note concludes with a look at the potential challenges countries may face, most notably those brought on by the COVID-19 pandemic, and prospects for them to remain or get on-track in future BRs.

Capital Account Openness in Low-income Developing Countries - Mrs.Sarwat Jahan 2016-12-23

The relevance of recording and assessing countries' capital flow management measures is well-recognized, but very few studies have focused on low-income developing countries (LIDCs). A key constraint is the lack of an appropriate index to measure the openness of capital account and its change over time. This paper fills the gap by constructing a de jure index based on information contained in the IMF's Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions. It provides an aggregate index to capture the overall openness of the capital account, and also provides a breakdown of openness for various subcategories of capital flows. The new database covers 164 countries with information on 12 types of asset categories over the period 1996–2013. The index provides the largest coverage of LIDCs among all existing indices and also provides granularity on openness across asset types, direction of flows and residency. The paper examines the link between de jure capital account openness with de facto capital flows and outlines potential applications of this database.

Drug Regulation in African Countries - Evans C. Chidomere 1991

Developing Heritage – Developing Countries - Marie Huber 2020-11-23

The history of development has paid only little attention to cultural projects. This book looks at the development politics that shaped the UNESCO World Heritage programme, with a case study of Ethiopian World Heritage sites from the 1960s to the 1980s. In a large-scale conservation and tourism planning project, selected sites were set up and promoted as images of the Ethiopian nation. This story serves to illustrate UNESCO's role in constructing a "useful past" in many African countries engaged in the process of nation-building.

UNESCO experts and Ethiopian elites had a shared interest in producing a portfolio of antiquities and national parks to underwrite Ethiopia's imperial claims to regional hegemony with ancient history. The key findings of this book highlight a continuity in Ethiopian history, despite the political ruptures caused by the 1974 revolution and UNESCO's transformation from knowledge producer to actual provider of development policies. The particular focus on the bureaucratic and political practices of heritage, bridges a gap between cultural heritage studies and the history of international organisations. The result is a first study of the global discourse on heritage as it emerged in the 1960s development decade.

Environmental Management: Issues and Concerns in Developing Countries - Pradip K. Sikdar 2021-03-17

This book deals with issues and concerns for the human environment in the developing countries incorporating natural processes and systems, pollution removal technology, energy conservation, environmental impact assessment process, economics, culture, political structure and societal equity from a management point of view. Solutions to the emerging problems of the environment need a paradigmatic shift in approach from a process based model to a socio-political-economic model. Hence environmental management should involve equality and control over use of the finite natural resources and the balance between Earth's biocapacity and humanity's ecological footprint. Changes such as green technologies, human population stabilization and adoption of ecologically harmonious lifestyles are absolutely essential and will require redesigning of political institutions, policies and revisiting forgotten skills of sustainable practices of environmental management. These challenges should centre on environment governance using the concepts of common property, equity and security. This book is relevant for academics, professionals, administrators and policy makers who are concerned with various aspects of environment management and governance.

NATO and the Gulf Countries - Ashraf Mohammed Keshk 2021-07-16

This book analyses the fifteen-year-long strategic partnership between NATO and the Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC). The book goes on to address several key questions raised in the year since the inception of the Istanbul Cooperation Initiative (ICI): Is the initiative a framework for consultation on Gulf and regional security issues? Is it a security initiative or a defensive one? Even more importantly, how was this initiative developed? Was there a mutual eagerness, on the part of NATO or that of the four Gulf States, to develop it? Is it possible for the initiative to be redeveloped and have other dimensions and outlooks in the future? Throughout the book, the author provides a comprehensive understanding and assessment of NATO's policies and their impact on the security of the Arab Gulf region.

U.S. Foreign Agricultural Trade by Countries, Fiscal Year - 1963

Development Success - Augustin K. Fosu 2012-11-22

What lessons can be learnt from 'developed' countries that might be useful for developing and emerging economies? With an emphasis on long-term growth and development, this book provides historical accounts of the development strategies of a select set of advanced countries. Each case study typically presents the country's 'successes' and the root causes of those successes. Organized into three parts, it covers The Nordics (Finland, Norway, Sweden, and Denmark), Other Industrially Advanced Countries (Japan, Ireland, and Switzerland), and Transition Economies (Czech, Hungary, and Poland). Although the book stresses that development strategies are, by and large, country and context-specific, the historical accounts are full of recurrent themes, which should provide useful lessons for developing countries and emerging economies.

Effective Market Access for Least Developed Countries Services Exports, An Analysis of the World Trade Organization Services Waiver for Least Developed Countries - United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD)

The LDC Waiver is a legal tool that enables WTO Members to sidestep their obligation to treat all services imports equally under the Most-Favoured Nation (MFN) clause through the granting preferential treatment to services and service exporters from a Least Developed Country (LDC). It is similar to the Enabling Clause for goods within the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP), except that the Waiver only benefits LDCs, not all developing countries. It operates thus as an LDC-only Enabling Clause for services. The Waiver only enables preferences, it does not require WTO Members to grant them, nor provide them with specific ideas or tools to facilitate LDCs' exports into their markets. Four country specific papers related to service exports in Cambodia, Nepal, Senegal and Zambia were undertaken with a view to help identify, design and implement smart mechanisms to facilitate LDCs' services exports. This paper draws upon the insights and findings of those four country papers to provide a condensed overview that will help LDCs increase their services exports.

Communications: Wireless in Developing Countries and Networks of the Future - Ana Pont 2010-08-06

Communications: Wireless in Developing Countries and Networks of the Future The present book contains the proceedings of two conferences held at the World Computer Congress 2010 in Brisbane, Australia (September 20–23) organized by the International Federation for Information Processing (IFIP): the Third IFIP TC 6 International Conference on Wireless Communications and Information Technology for Developing Countries (WCITD 2010) and the IFIP TC 6 International Network of the Future Conference (NF 2010). The main objective of these two IFIP conferences on communications is to provide a platform for the exchange of recent and original contributions in wireless networks in developing countries and networks of the future. There are many exciting trends and developments in the communications industry, several of which are related to advances in wireless networks, and next-generation Internet. It is commonly believed in the communications industry that a new generation should appear in the next ten years. Yet there are a number of issues that are being worked on in various industry research and development labs and universities towards enabling wireless high-speed networks, virtualization techniques, smart networks, high-level security schemes, etc. We would like to thank the members of the Program Committees and the external reviewers and we hope these proceedings will be very useful to all researchers interested in the fields of wireless networks and future network technologies.

Developing Countries in the World Economy - Jaime de Melo 2015-03-26

Differences in the choices of trade and macro policies, both by developing countries and by developed countries towards developing countries, have been critical in determining the overall performance of developing countries. All too often, the performance of developing countries has not been assessed using appropriately conducted studies. The papers in this book are chosen to bridge this gap and show how a quantitative approach to policy evaluation can help resolve controversies and explain the choice of observed policies. The book brings together carefully selected papers that assess the impacts of various trade and macro policies, by quantifying the policies of developing countries at the macro level (exchange rate, investment, savings) and at the sector level (trade and industrial policies), in addition to policies of developed countries towards developing countries (trade preferences, quotas, VERs and migration policies). Facets of the political economy of trade, migration, and climate policies are explored (such as the enlargement of the EU, the rise of regionalism and how it can ease the pains of adjustment to trade liberalization, openness and inequality). Growing tensions between trade and the environment are also investigated. In short, this book covers a wide area of events ranging from external and internal shocks to external and internal policies, showing how the consequences of these events can be brought to rigorous quantitative analysis. Contents: Reforms, Adjustment and Growth: What Went Wrong with the Recent Reforms in the Southern Cone (with Vittorio Corbo and James Tybout) The Effects of Financial Liberalization on Savings and Investment in Uruguay (with James Tybout) Adjustment with a Fixed Exchange Rate: Cameroon, Côte d'Ivoire and Senegal (with Shantayanan Devarajan) Growth-Oriented Adjustment Programs: A Statistical Analysis (with Riccardo Faini, Abdelhak Senhadji and Julie Stanton) Adjustment, Investment and the Real Exchange Rate in Developing Countries (with Riccardo Faini) Fiscal Spending and Economic Growth: Some Stylized Facts (with Céline Carrère) Trade Policies, Market Structure and Market Access: Pricing Policy Under Double Market Power: Madagascar and the International Vanilla Market (with Marcelo Olarreaga and Wendy Takacs) The Influence of Increased Foreign Competition on Industrial Concentration and Profitability (with Shujiro Urata) The Effects of Trade Reforms on Scale and Technical Efficiency: New Evidence from Chile (with Vittorio Corbo and James Tybout) Do Exporters Gain from VERs? (with Alan Winters) Are Different Rules of Origin Equally Costly? Estimates from NAFTA (with Céline Carrère) Has Distance Died? Evidence from a Panel Gravity Model (with Jean-François Brun, Céline Carrère and Patrick Guillaumont) Political Economy: The New Regionalism: A Country Perspective (with Arvind Panagariya and Dani Rodrik) The Protectionist Bias of Duty Drawbacks: Evidence from Mercosur (with Olivier Cadot and Marcelo Olarreaga) Why OECD Countries Should Reform Rules of Origin (with Olivier Cadot) The Political Economy of Migration in a Ricardo-Viner Model (with Jean-Marie Grether and Tobias Müller) Attitudes Towards Immigration: A Trade Theoretic Approach (with Sanoussi Bilal and Jean-Marie Grether) The Political Economy of Migration and EU Enlargement: Lessons from Switzerland (with Florence Miguet and Tobias Müller) Challenges Ahead – An Inclusive Globalization and Environmental Policies: Openness, Inequality and Poverty: Endowments Matter (with Julien Gourdon and Nicolas Maystre) FDI, the Brain Drain and Trade: Channels and Evidence (with Artjoms Ivlevs) Trade in a 'Green Growth' Development Strategy: Issues and Challenges Unravelling the Worldwide Pollution Haven Effect (with Jean-Marie Grether and Nicole Mathys) Readership: Graduate students, researchers and professionals interested in developmental economics, international economics and political economy. Keywords: Trade Barriers and Market Structure; Quantitative Restrictions; Political Economy and Migration; Trade and the Environment Key Features: One of the few books that addresses the performance of developing countries through appropriately conducted studies with rigorous quantitative analyses Adopts a quantitative approach in evaluating policies and shows how this can help resolve controversies and explain the choice of observed policies Analysis of the policies in developing countries is done across the macro level and sector levels, as well as on the policy choices of developed countries towards developing countries

Public Health in Developing Countries - Edlyne Eze Anugwom 2020-09-09

Public health entails the use of models, technologies, experience and evidence derived through consumer participation, translational research and population sciences to protect and improve the health of the population. Enhancing public health is of significant importance to the development of a nation, particularly for developing countries where the health care system is underdeveloped, fragile or vulnerable. This book examines progress and challenges with regards to public health in developing countries in two parts: Part 1 "General and Crosscutting Issues in Public Health and Case Studies" and Part 2 "Country-Specific Issues in Public Health." For example, assuring equity for marginalized indigenous groups and other key populations entails the application of transdisciplinary interventions including legislation, advocacy, financing, empowerment and de-stigmatization. The diverse structural, political, economic, technological, geographical and social landscape of developing countries translates to unique public health challenges, infrastructure and implementation trajectories in addressing issues such as vector-borne diseases and intimate partner violence. This volume will be of interest to researchers, health ministry policy makers, public health professionals and non-governmental organizations whose work entails collaborations with public health systems of developing nations and regions.

Emerging Africa - Steven Radelet 2010-10-01

Emerging Africa describes the too-often-overlooked positive changes that have taken place in much of Africa since the mid-1990s. In 17 countries, five fundamental and sustained breakthroughs are making old assumptions increasingly untenable: • The rise of democracy brought on by the end of the Cold War and apartheid • Stronger economic management • The end of the debt crisis and a more constructive relationship with the international community • The introduction of new technologies, especially mobile phones and the Internet • The emergence of a new generation of leaders. With these significant changes, the countries of emerging Africa seem poised to lead the continent out of the conflict, stagnation, and dictatorships of the past. The countries discussed in the book are Botswana, Burkina Faso, Cape Verde, Ethiopia, Ghana, Lesotho, Mali Mauritius, Mozambique, Namibia, Rwanda, São Tomé and Príncipe, Seychelles, South Africa, Tanzania, Uganda, and Zambia.
